DIGESTS OF CURRENT NYC THEATRE REVIEWS

The Cave Dwellers- Bijou 10/19. 6 Pros and 1 Con-Herald Tribune- filed on William Saroyan's first new play in fourteen years. Carmen Capalbo-Stanley Chase presentation, directed by Capalbo and featuring Wayne Morris, Eugenie Leontovich, Barry Jones and Susan Harrison praised by the majority as one of Saroyan's best plays given a beautiful production. Sole dissenter Kerr, Herald Tribune, felt it had only one compelling scene of theatre the remainder of the evening being in the hands of Saroyan the juicy-fruit spieler. Atkinson, Times, headed pros with a rave review billing play as one author's most enchanting stories with a director and cast making it a joy. An evening of tenderness and beauty, magnificently staged agreed Chapman, News. Coleman, Mirror, and McClain, Journal American, both enjoyed play but feared it would have limited box-office appeal. Saroyan makes us believe in his beautiful people because he believes in them, tabs Watts, Post, as the author's secret. Post critic welcomed Saroyan back to theatre. Aston, World Telegram-Sun, summed it up as something pretty wonderful, with acting and direction superlative.

Nature's Way- Coronet- 10/16. 1 Pro-News- and 6 Cons- filed on Herman Wouk's new comedy presented by Alfred de Liagre, jr. Chapman, News, found most of bright, much of it funny, though author and director (de Liagre) should have decided if play was comedy or farce. Orson Bean, Betsy von Furstenberg were featured, though News aisle-men also enjoyed bit parts portrayed by Joe Silver and Barry Newman. Con side thought play unfunny inspite of appealing actors involved. Several wished author Wouk would return to his more serious work, such as "The Caine Mutiny." A silly show which represents the compensation a man of intellect requires, excuses Atkinson, Times. As for cast, Times dismissed it as a stock company-loud, busy and over-eager. A poor farce, noted Coleman, Mirror. Subjects author picks not funny, adds Kerr, Herald Tribune. Though audience seemed to enjoy proceedings, Aston, WTS, rated play as aimless and strenuous. A series of TV episodes, not a play, rates McClain, Journal American. The audience poll of Journal American listed 8 pros, no cons.

Copper and Brass- Martin Beck- 10/18. 1 Pro- News- and 6 Cons- filed on new musical starring Nancy Walker. Lyn Austin-Thomas Noyes production with book by Ellen Violett and David Craig, lyrics by Craig and music by David Baker features Walker, Benay Venuta, Alan Bunce and Dick Williams. Most applauded Walker but doubted if she was enough to carry the entire evening. Chapman, News, thought she was. Though he agreed that music and lyrics were on the frantic side he felt that when Walker was in charge the proceedings were delightful and delectably. Atkinson, Times, summed up majority view that it is a standard-old fashioned show with a breathlessly unfunny book, uninteresting music, unlovely ballets and a general look of banality and routine. Critics also agreed in blaming authors and producers of unfairness to their comic favorite Walker who deserves better. Journal American audience poll rated it 3 pros and 2 cons.

Under Milk Wood- Henry Miller--10/15. 3 Pros-News, World Telegram & Sun, Journal American- and 4. cons- filed on Dylan Thomas' play originally written as a radio poem and presented by Gilbert Miller-Henry Sherek-Roger Stevens with a large cast headed by Donald Houston. The 3 votes of approval were mild at best. Chapman, News, found much beauty and several fine performances. Aston, WTS, thought players came through admirably in illustrating poet's sardonic, coarse, whimsical wit. McClain, Journal American, also enjoyed it a poetic and wonderfully gratifying exposition of almost everything. Trio agreed it would have limited appeal. Dissenters blamed author and director for presenting busy, unclear production. Atkinson, Times, noted play lacked simplicity of Wilder's "Our Town". Though well-acted and staged it remains diffuse, he fears. Kerr, Herald Tribune, blamed director Douglas Cleverdon for not pulling elements together. Watts, Post, agreed that results were too piecemeal and not theatrical enough.

THEATRE
COMMENTS

"Oxford Companion to the Theatre (2nd Edition)" by Phyllis Hartnoll (Oxford $11.50) has hundreds of entries embracing the US stage, notes Rodo, Variety. Book is on the bulky side and in a small type face.

"The Winning Circle" by John Van Druten (Scribner's $3.95) enjoyed by Nichols, Times as a casual, informal yet deep autobiographical look at a top playwright.

"West Side Story" original cast disc (Columbia) has an important dimension missing in the recording version, reports Watt, News. Some of the individual selections come off extremely well, but many of the rest call for greater vocal authority than any of the leading players possess. Bernstein seems only moderately successful with the romantic passages.

GREEN
DEPARTMENT

PARK PLANS... The Park Department should not become producers of theatre in the park, Park Commissioner Robert Moses detailed in Herald Tribune article, Instead it should fix bounds and limits and let producers experiment within them. He feels that the city owes a lot to Michael Grace for his musicals presented in Central Park. There was no city money involved and Grace, using his own money, was running tremendous risks.

COLUMN TIPS... West Side Story stage-hand payroll larger than casts, reports Winchell, Mirror... Jean Renoir plans to adapt Awake and Sing for the French stage, notes Walker, News... Meyer Levin to skip opening of Compulsion as protest to changes in his dialogue items Lyons, Post.

DRAMA MAIL BAG... A return to individual "Playbill" covers urged by Times reader instead of the same slick, flashy drawing on the front cover... Herman Levin was highly praised by Charles Meeker, Jr. Dallas State Fair Music Hall, for sending first class production of My Fair Lady on road, in note to Variety.

"WEST" DANCE ... Dance critic Terry, Herald Tribune, recommends West Side Story as a show not to be missed by those responsive to the powers, physical and dramatic, of dance. Show simply could not have done without a dancing cast, and all of them are called upon to perform the toughest and most demanding choreography which, perhaps, Broadway has ever seen.

CRITICAL THOUGHTS... With Chapman, Macy's and Watts in favor of Romanoff and Juliet, Watts, Post, wonders how Gimbel's feels about it... Easier ticket procurement and earlier curtains for suburbanites suggested by Booth, Times... Critics have no power at all and should be given some for Christmas, suggests author Richard Bissell, Playbill.

SECOND GUESSES... Chapman, News, found it remarkable that there was more theatre in Emlyn Williams' solo recital A Boy Growing Up than in the elaborate, many-peopled Under Milk Wood. .. Seeing with your ears and hearing with your eyes, is the way to see Under Milk Wood suggests Aston, World Telegram & Sun... Eva Le Gallienne's portrayal of Elizabeth in Mary Stuart is the finest job she has ever offered, rates Watts, Post.

THOM vs LEVIN... Robert Thom, in a prepared statement printed by McCord, Herald Tribune, states his role in the Compulsion script controversy. He said that the script author Meyer Levin presented was completely unproduceable and unactable. The play due to open is not a re-write, but a completely new script, not only in dialogue and characterization but also in structure. Script, Thom continues, is based in equal measure on Levin's novel and original research into the Loeb-Leopold case. Thom also states that he has legal evidence that the script Levin maintains is his is actually 85% Thom's.

INTERVIEW HI-LITES... Intelligence and taste is what Morton Da Costa looks for in actors readings, the busy director told Allen, Herald Tribune. He can tell in a few lines if the actor has these qualities or not. Auntie Mame director also checks Broadway production to keep show as close to the way it originally was as possible... Richard Maney admits he is three years past his deadline on his awaited biography "Fan-Fare" published this week by Harper's, he told Ferris, WTS. The Army-McCarthy hearings and My Fair Lady are his excuses.

" PROS & CONS BY TMK "

The Cave Dwellers makes it three adult, compelling, beautiful productions of unusual plays for Capalbo-Chase at the Bijou. Like last season's "The Potting Shed" and "A Moon for the Misbegotten" Saroyan's script has a perfect cast, inspired direction, tasteful sets, costumes and lights. All are blended into a truly vital evening that the theatre-goer will long cherish. The play itself is Saroyan's best.

* * *

Copper and Brass is just about as funny as its title with book, lyrics and music akin to an original high school musical of the 1920's. Even the natural clown antics of Nancy Walker and the charm of Benay Venuta cannot change the dull thud of the evening.

* * *

Under Milk Wood is an ambitious attempt to over-produce a script originally written for radio. Going in at least seven directions at once the result on-stage is a mish-mash. There is no doubt that the proceedings mark a successful challenge to the set designer who had a field day, but the director, like the audience, seems lost in the maze of characters and scenes.

* * *

Controversy in the theatre is most useful when confined to on-stage activities not the off-stage bickerings of producer, author, director, actors, etc. The blow-by-blow account, plus ads, of the battle between Compulsion staff, author, adaptor and actors is the kind of stuff that should be kept secret and should certainly not be broadcast. Such confusion and bickering can only result in bad publicity and in no way aid box-office sales.

* * *

Abnormally high rate of flu among cast members of Broadway shows, particularly in the musicals, is a reminder to builders of tomorrow's theatres, if and when they ever get built. The new theatres must contain better and more healthy quarters for cast as well as comfortable seats for the viewers.

* * *

In spite of a rather hectic start to the Off Broadway season the promised new playhouses have as yet not been used and/or finished. Work on several of the more ambitious projects seems to have come to a halt, while work on several of the other announced projects never seems to have started. Off Broadway theatre goers must patiently wait for the workmen to catch up with the press releases.

* * *

With the abundance of dramatic readings scheduled, the ambitious theatre lover who attended six On and Off Broadway shows during the week can also, if he watches his schedule closely, catch four more Off Broadway readings on week-ends. We ask again--Who says the theatre is dead?
